THE SOUTHEASTERN ASSOCIATION OF LAW SCHOOLS

A Message from the President

It is my great pleasure to welcome you to the 67th annual conference of the Southeastern Association of Law Schools (SEALS) at the newly renovated Omni Plantation Resort on Amelia Island, Florida. I hope you and your families have a productive and enjoyable stay.

As in past years, this year's meeting promises a rich variety of programs on a wide range of subjects presented through an array of formats including traditional panels, special discussion groups, and demonstration stations. While many of the programs are free-standing, many others are organized into thematic workshops to afford attendees the capacity to explore certain areas in greater depth. This year's workshops seem to offer something for everyone as they include programs on Health Law, Race, Intellectual Property, Trusts and Estates, Constitutional Law, Teaching, Prospective Law Teachers, International Law, the Legal Profession, National Security Law, Business Law, Experiential Learning, Family Law, and Criminal Law and Procedure. In addition to our workshops, we continue our longstanding commitment to young scholars through our Young Scholars Colloquia, which consists of a series of scholarship panels throughout the week featuring the work of untenured colleagues from our institutional and affiliate member schools. Please support these young scholars. You will learn much from these promising new comers, and they will benefit greatly from your feedback.

As you enjoy your time at the annual meeting, please take note of our sponsors and join with me and the SEALS Board of Trustees in thanking them for their invaluable support. These sponsors include: Bloomberg BNA; Carolina Academic Press; LexisNexis; West Academic; and Wolters Kluwer Law & Business. They are the ones who help make possible the food at the breaks and receptions and the tennis and golf during the course of the conference. Please show them your appreciation for all that they do for SEALS.

Again, welcome to the 2014 Annual Meeting. We hope that you enjoy your time with us, meet new colleagues and reconnect with existing ones, and that you leave feeling enlightened and refreshed.

My best wishes,

Steven Kaminshine

Dean, Georgia State University College of Law

Southeastern Association of Law Schools | 2014 Annual Conference

Omni Amelia Island Plantation Resort | Amelia Island, FL | August 1-7, 2014

Program Format Overview

The SEALS 2014 Annual Meeting brochure reflects the contributions of committees and individuals in proposing panel topics, securing speakers, moderators, mentors, and writing panel descriptions.

The SEALS 2014 Annual Meeting program includes a variety of program formats. The paragraphs below provide a brief description of each format. Unless otherwise indicated, every program is open to all SEALS attendees.

New Scholars Workshop

The New Scholars Workshop offers newer faculty members an opportunity to present, and receive feedback on, a work in progress. Over the course of the annual meeting, there will be seventeen New Scholar Workshop sessions, each typically featuring a moderator and three or four speakers. Speakers are nominated by member schools, and each speaker is assigned a Mentor, who is available to provide both pre-and post-presentation advice and commentary. Whenever possible, SEALS groups New Scholars Workshop panels thematically.

Prospective Law Teachers and New Law Teachers Workshops

Last year, SEALS introduced two new features that built upon the success of its New Scholars Workshop. Given the features' success, SEALS is continuing them this year. The first is the Prospective Law Teachers Workshops (planned by the committee of the same name), which are aimed at assisting VAPs, Fellows, LLMS, and others interested in obtaining an entry-level academic position. These Workshops include mock interviews, CV reviews, and various informational sessions to help attendees navigate the hiring market. The second new feature is New Law Teachers Workshops (planned by the Beginning and Newer Law Teachers Committee). These Workshops focus on issues that are of particular interest to the newer law teachers, such as becoming a good classroom teacher, creating an effective course, methods of assessment, becoming a good scholar, and balancing service and scholarship.

Topical Workshops

Each year, SEALS offers interrelated events under a Workshop designation. Topics vary from year to year. Each Workshop has several events, which usually are scheduled for a single day but sometimes extend into a second day. When possible, Workshop sessions are scheduled to follow the same break schedule as other programs, so that attendees with multiple interests can attend a topical Workshop session in one time slot and a different topical Workshop (or some other event) in another time slot in the same day.

Discussion Groups and Roundtable Discussions

Participants in these events will focus on a particular topic or theme, as identified in the program. Although Discussion Groups and Roundtable Discussions are convened in different ways, in many cases, the participants prepare a short paper in advance of the annual meeting that the other participants read and comment upon at the session. These sessions are often longer than a traditional panel session to allow for a more in-depth, interactive discussion of the topic or theme. Discussion Groups and Roundtable Discussions may, but need not be, linked to Workshop programs. Those who convene Discussion Groups and Roundtable Discussions are encouraged to include participants selected from a call for papers to the SEALS membership. The program description for each session offers additional information about the composition of the event and the way in which the session will be conducted.

Panels

SEALS offers many "standalone" panels organized around a specific topic or theme. Topics and themes may be theoretical, doctrinal, pedagogical, service-oriented, law reform-oriented, or focused on other matters of interest to law school faculty members and administrators. Panels are moderated and typically consist of up to five featured speakers. In most cases, presenters are not required to submit or bring written drafts or copies of their related work.

Expos

An Expo focuses on a particular doctrinal area or teaching method and showcases how it is covered at several schools. This year's Expo topic, distance learning, provides hands-on access to several distance learning courses.

Luncheons

The Call for Papers Luncheon features the work of faculty members whose papers were selected from among those submitted for review. This luncheon is ticketed and requires advance reservations.

The New Scholars Luncheon, sponsored by Wolters Kluwer Law & Business, offers a networking opportunity for newer faculty members. It is not limited to those who present at the New Scholars Workshop, but it does require advance reservations.

The Steering Committee Luncheon is the meeting at which officers and committee chairs report on SEALS activities. It is also the forum at which institutional member schools elect new SEALS officers and other trustees. Each institutional and affiliate member school selects one individual to represent it at this luncheon (in addition to any faculty member who is already a trustee or committee chair).

Breaks, Receptions, and Gala

Breaks between sessions (which are sponsored by Bloomberg BNA, Carolina Academic Press, and LexisNexis), receptions, and the annual Gala provide opportunities to interact with colleagues at other schools who share your teaching or scholarly interests and with representatives from publishers. Depending on the type and timing of the event, beverages or food may be available. Receptions hosted by our newest members introduce those schools to SEALS. The Gala (sponsored by LexisNexis), the New Scholars Luncheon (sponsored by Wolters Kluwer Law & Business), and the Call for Papers Luncheon are ticketed and require advance reservations; the other events do not.

Thanks are owed to West Academic, which printed this program and the Day-At-A-Glance.

WORKSHOP ON HEALTH LAW

Discussion Group: Public Health Law Theory and Practice

Law plays a vital role in promoting the public health. Not only does law itself serve as a social determinant of health, law influences health outcomes by framing relationships between the state and individuals and entities in the health care enterprise. This Discussion Group provides a dynamic forum to examine law's impact on public health. Our dialogue will explore the role of the First Amendment in the regulatory state, the integration of behavioral economics in public health policy, Big Data's influence on public health, and other topics in public health law theory and practice.

Moderator: Professor Efthimios Parasidis, The Ohio State University, Moritz College of Law

Discussants: Professor Deleso A. Alford, Florida A&M University College of Law; Professor Courtney Anderson, Georgia State University College of Law; Professor Jennifer Bard, Texas Tech University School of Law; Professor Nathan Cortez, SMU Dedman School of Law; Professor Elizabeth Weeks Leonard, University of Georgia School of Law; Professor Seema Mohapatra, Barry University, Dwayne O. Andreas School of Law; Professor Brie Sherwin, Texas Tech University School of Law; Professor Nicolas P. Terry, Indiana University, Robert H. McKinney School of Law; Professor Lindsay F. Wiley, American University, Washington College of Law

9:00 AM -
12:00 PM

WORKSHOP ON TRUSTS & ESTATES

Discussion Group: Designing an Estate Planning Course

So many different courses are offered with the title "Estate Planning": some are advanced tax planning courses, some are focused on will drafting, some are practical skills courses, and others are a combination. In addition, Estate Planning is a course that is particularly well-suited to training practice-ready lawyers. Each Discussion Group participant will speak for approximately 10 minutes, share his or her prerequisites, class size, learning goals, and syllabus, discuss the text and/or resources used, and share one assignment, activity or exercise. After each participant speaks, we will open the conversation up to discuss the various learning goals for an Estate Planning class and how best to reach them.

Moderator: Professor Rebecca Cummings, Atlanta's John Marshall Law School

Discussants: Professor Lynda Black, University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law; Professor Deborah Gordon, Drexel University School of Law; Professor Victoria Mather, St. Mary's University School of Law; Professor Lisa Milot, University of Georgia School of Law; Professor Alan Oxford, Appalachian School of Law; Professor Virginia Shuman, Charleston School of Law; Professor Phyllis Smith, Florida A&M University College of Law; Professor Lee-Ford Tritt, University of Florida, Fredric G. WORKSHOP ON RACE

Discussion Group: Clinical Legal Education and Race

This discussion group will focus on the role of clinical legal educators in teaching and addressing issues of race. The participants will draw upon life and practice experiences, and explain the ways in which those experiences impact their teaching. They will discuss the standard articles that have been used as teaching tools on issues of race and identify gaps that need to be addressed in future scholarship. They will also discuss the need for racial diversity among the clinical professoriate and brainstorm steps necessary to both recognize and address the lack of such diversity.

Moderator: Professor Cynthia Hawkins DeBose, Stetson University College of Law

Discussants: Professor Deborah Archer, New York Law School; Professor Benjamin Barton, The University of Tennessee College of Law; Professor Susan Bryant, CUNY School of Law; Professor Jon C. Dubin, Rutgers University, Newark School of Law; Professor Aderson B. Francois, Howard University School of Law; Professor Mercer Givhan, New York Law School; Professor Donna Hae Kyun Lee, CUNY School of Law; Professor Karla McKanders, The University of Tennessee College of Law; Professor Kim McLaurin, Suffolk University Law School; Professor Lynisse E. Pantin, New York Law School; Professor Michael Pinard, University of Maryland, Francis King Carey School of Law; Professor Mae Quinn, Washington University School of Law; Professor Brenda V. Smith, American University, Washington College of Law; Professor Kele Stewart, University of Miami School of Law

10:00 AM -
12:00 PM

WORKSHOP ON INTERNATIONAL LAW & CRIMINAL LAW

Discussion Group: Strategies for Teaching International Criminal Law

Teaching international criminal law can be a daunting task, given that professors often approach the subject from either an international or a criminal law background without necessarily having experience in the other field. It can also be a challenge for students for the same reason. This discussion group is designed to exchange strategies and ideas for teaching a course that blends these two substantive areas of law. Each participant in the discussion forum will explain in five minutes a particular pedagogical method that has worked well for him or her as well as any challenges that he or she has faced when teaching this increasingly offered course.

Moderator: Professor C. Cora True-Frost, Syracuse University College of Law

Discussants: Professor David Akerson, University of Denver, Sturm College of Law; Professor Lucian Dervan, Southern Illinois University School of Law; Professor Megan Fairlie, Florida International University College of Law; Professor Ken Levy, Louisiana State University Paul M. Hebert Law Center; Professor Elizabeth Ludwin King, Wake Forest University School of Law; Professor Ellen Podgor, Stetson University College of Law; Professor Laurent Sacharoff, University of Arkansas School of Law; Professor Susana SaCouto, American University, Washington College of Law; Professor Milena Sterio, Cleveland State University, Cleveland-Marshall College of Law; Professor Beth Van Schaack, Santa Clara University School of Law

N.Y. Times v. Sullivan at Fifty

When N.Y. Times v. Sullivan was decided, one commentator remarked that it was an occasion for “dancing in the streets.” The decision has now been on the books for fifty years and is ripe for reassessment. In this panel, the speakers will examine Sullivan’s impact in the U.S., contrasting standards adopted in other nations and the relative efficacy of the Sullivan standard and the alternate standards.

Moderator: Professor Eugene Mazo, Wake Forest University School of Law

Speakers: Professor Ronald Krotoszynski, The University of Alabama School of Law; Professor Carlo Pedrioli, Barry University, Dwayne O. Andreas School of Law; Professor Howard Wasserman, Florida International University College of Law; Professor Russell Weaver, University of Louisville, Louis D. Brandeis School of Law

1:00 PM -
2:45 PM The Future of Reauthorization of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965

The Elementary and Secondary Education of 1965 (ESEA) has been one of the primary federal influences on education law and policy since its enactment. The current reauthorization, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 (NCLB), has been praised for attempting to reduce opportunity and achievement gaps while it also has been sharply criticized for, among other things, encouraging states to lower state academic standards and increasing federal authority over education. The ESEA has been in desperate need of reauthorization for several years. In the absence of needed reform, Secretary Duncan has granted waivers from the requirements of NCLB to many states. This panel will explore these issues and present some new thoughts on how the ESEA should be reformed.

Moderator: Professor Rachel Anderson, University of Nevada, Las Vegas, William S. Boyd School of Law

Speakers: Professor Derek Black, University of South Carolina School of Law; Professor Preston Green, University of Connecticut School of Education; Professor Eloise Pasachoff, Georgetown University Law Center; Professor Kimberly Robinson, University of Richmond School of Law

The Meaning of Disability

This panel will consider how the meaning of disability may be evolving from a few different perspectives, including genetics, health law, statutory equality law, constitutional equality law, and the social sciences. Panelists will also consider ways in which the meaning of disability has proven resistant to change. Finally, this panel will consider whether the meaning of disability should change in light of certain justificatory theories.

Moderator: Professor Elizabeth Pendo, Saint Louis University School of Law

Speakers: Professor Brad Areheart, The University of Tennessee College of Law; Professor Nicole Porter, University of Toledo College of Law; Professor Jessica Roberts, University of Houston Law Center; Professor Michelle Travis, University of San Francisco School of Law; Professor Michael Waterstone, Loyola Law School, Los Angeles

WORKSHOP ON TEACHING Incorporating Simulations into Law School Courses

Over the last decade, more and more law schools have been focusing on how to provide their students with opportunities to obtain "real world" practice skills and thereby minimize the transition from the legal academy to private practice. While at one time, clinics and externships were the only option for students desiring such training, an increasing number of law schools are now offering new options, such as simulation-based practicums as well as doctrinal courses featuring simulation exercises. Given the fact that the movement to simulation-based practicums is relatively new, law professors have had few opportunities at professional conferences to have a sustained conversation about designing and teaching practicum courses. This panel provides an opportunity to begin that conversation.

Moderator: Professor Todd Peppers, Washington and Lee University School of Law

Speakers: Professor Brian Clarke, Charlotte Law School; Professor John Lande, University of Missouri School of Law; Professor Paula Schaefer, The University of Tennessee College of Law; Professor Alexander Scherr, University of Georgia School of Law; Professor Heather Way, University of Texas School of Law; Professor Ronald Wright, Wake Forest University School of Law

Legal Barriers to the Implementation of Leasing Contracts Implementation in Russia

This panel, which emanates from the Gaidar Fellowship program, explores some of the legal barriers to the implementation of leasing contracts in Russia. Leasing is critical for small and medium-sized businesses in Russia. Because of the difficulty in accessing loans from banks, leasing represents one of the only ways that businesses can gain access to the machines and tools necessary for growing their businesses. In discussing the legal barriers to leasing, the panelists will touch on some of the neglected--but very real--problems that a transitional, civil law system like Russia poses to the construction of a vibrant free-market economy that encourages bottom-up growth from small businesses.

NEW LAW TEACHERS WORKSHOP

Discussion Group: Talking with an Expert in Your Field: Small Group Sessions Pairing an Experienced Teacher and New Teachers in Typical First-Year Law Courses

Did you ever wonder how experienced professors teach the same subject you are now teaching? These mini-discussions pair experienced with less experienced teachers in the same subject areas. The breakout leaders will be ready to discuss such questions as: What are different but valid approaches to the course? What are the top cases to teach and how do you teach them? What are the outcomes I might seek? How are different teaching methodologies applied to this course? What has worked for you in this course? What hasn't worked? How do you handle the evaluation and assessment of students?

Moderator: Professor Paul Boudreaux, Stetson University College of Law

Discussants: Professor Olympia Duhart, Nova Southeastern University, Shepard Broad Law Center; Professor Howard Katz, Elon University School of Law; Professor Susan Klein, University of Texas School of Law; Professor Benjamin Madison, Regent University School of Law; Professor Eang Ngov, Barry University, Dwayne O. WORKSHOP ON HEALTH LAW

Discussion Group: Hot Issues in Law & Bioethics

Most bioethical intersections between medical practice and the law affect patients in very personal ways. Some examples are the effects of ethical and legal determinations on those seeking what might be last-chance treatments through clinical trials or other types of medical research and those facing intensely private decisions such as whether to end their pregnancies, whether to start a family, or how to spend their final days. The participants in this discussion group will comment on legal and ethical developments and share thoughts on directions for the future as they share the most current research on these and more bioethics subjects, including medical professional self-regulation, grateful patient fundraising, disability inequities, and supported decision-making.

Moderator: Professor Kelly K. Dineen, Saint Louis University School of Law

Discussants: Professor Deleso A. Alford, Florida A&M University College of Law; Professor Jennifer Bard, Texas Tech University School of Law; Professor Kathy Cerminara, Nova Southeastern University, Shepard Broad Law Center; Professor Fazal Khan, University of Georgia School of Law; Professor Nina Kohn, Syracuse University College of Law; Professor Elizabeth Pendo, Saint Louis University School of Law; Professor Thaddeus Mason Pope, Hamline University School of Law; Professor Jessica Roberts, University of Houston Law Center; Professor Stacey A. WORKSHOP ON RACE

Discussion Group: Defining Multiracialism and its Impact on the Law

Although multiracialism is not a novel concept, the law has been slow to accommodate the changing nature of racial categories. This panel will explore the ways in which individuals who identify themselves or who are identified as "multiracial" are treated by existing legal structures. We will also explore the possible implications that multiracialism and the evolution of legal racial categories may have for different areas of the law, including employment law, family law, education law, and constitutional law. Last, panelists will offer suggestions as to how the law might best accommodate multiracial individuals and whether doing so may have implications for members of traditionally defined racial groups.

Moderator: Professor Lauren Sudeall Lucas, Georgia State University College of Law

Discussants: Professor Taunya Banks, University of Maryland, Francis King Carey School of Law; Professor Kevin Brown, Indiana University, Maurer School of Law; Professor Tanya Hernandez, Fordham University School of Law; Professor Osamudia James, University of Miami School of Law; Professor Nancy Leong, University of Denver, Sturm College of Law; Professor Maritza Reyes, Florida A&M University College of Law; Professor Camille Gear Rich, University of Southern California Law School; Professor Rose Cuison Villazor, University of California, Davis, School of Law

WORKSHOP ON TRUSTS AND ESTATES

Discussion Group: Innovations in Trusts and Estates

Andy Warhol is credited with the quote, "They always say time changes things, but you actually have to change them yourself." This discussion group is designed to bring together professors who teach, write, or practice in the area of trusts and estates to share ideas and gather feedback. In the first part of the discussion, several members of the panel will discuss innovations, new ideas, and changes in trusts and estates pedagogy. In the second part of the discussion, other panelists will discuss new directions in trusts and estates scholarship, including works-in-progress and recently published articles. Finally, the discussion will shift to innovations in the practice of trusts and estates and the future of attorneys counseling clients in this area of law.

Moderator: Professor Martina Cartwright, Texas Southern University, Thurgood Marshall School of Law

Discussants: Professor Julia Belian, University of Detroit Mercy School of Law; Professor Naomi Cahn, The George Washington University Law School; Professor Patricia Cain, Santa Clara University School of Law; Professor Camille Davidson, Charlotte Law School; Professor Alyssa DiRusso, Samford University's Cumberland School of Law; Professor Deborah Gordon, Drexel University School of Law; Professor Terri Lynn Helge, Texas A&M University School of Law; Professor William LaPiana, New York Law School; Professor Browne Lewis, Cleveland State University, Cleveland-Marshall College of Law; Professor Kathryn Lorio, Loyola University New Orleans College of Law; Professor Lucy McGough, Appalachian School of Law; Professor Alan Oxford, Appalachian School of Law; Professor Lee-Ford Tritt, University of Florida, Fredric G. Methods of Assessment - Creating Successful Examinations, Quizzes and Formative Evaluations

The panelists for this session will explore assessment tools, both formative and summative. This includes writing a meaningful exam and creating useful formative assessments during the semester. Topics will include the basic mechanics of exam-writing and constructing efficient formative tools and related matters such as cultural implications, the relevance of disabilities, the rationales behind open and closed book exams, and more.

In the Interests of "The Community": Public and Private Occupancy Restrictions

This panel will focus on the ways in which municipalities and common interest communities can – and do – restrict occupancy in ways that exclude particular types of residents. In particular, zoning laws and the covenants found in many common-interest communities may overtly prohibit occupation by renters, undocumented immigrants, unrelated individuals, students, and/or felons. Legally, contract law and a municipality's police power as applied to zoning are employed to uphold these restraints. The policy justifications boil down to appeals to "property values" and "family values." Yet the widespread enforcement of such public and private occupancy restrictions may be problematic, with profound implications for associational rights, de facto housing segregation, and efficiency of use.

WORKSHOP ON INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY LAW 2020: An IP Odyssey

This panel will discuss the intersection of new technology and intellectual property law. Apple's latest operating system, iOS, includes support for a new technology called the Internet of Things ("IoT"). IoT technology allows beacons to transmit and receive information from mobile devices in real time. Further, by 2018, there will be at least 10 million Internet-connected vehicles. In addition, analysts predict that in the next 5-10 years, affordable technology will allow consumers to 3D print various products. Finally, mobile technology has facilitated the proliferation of mobile health applications that allow consumers to monitor their health. These technologies have numerous implications in the areas of intellectual property and will raise regulatory and privacy concerns.

WORKSHOP ON HEALTH LAW

ACA Implementation – Some Initial Observations and Critiques

Though the Affordable Care Act was signed into law in 2010, many of its healthcare coverage expansion provisions went into effect January 1, 2014. The success of this implementation phase will influence whether the ACA becomes entrenched through public support or retrenched through failures in execution and political backlash. Implementation also has brought about fundamental changes in how the healthcare system is organized and regulated, with implications for health law, policy, and ethics. This panel will discuss aspects of ACA implementation, including the federalism dynamics revealed by Medicaid expansion and operation of the health insurance exchanges, changes in the role of physicians, and strategies to constrain costs through payment reforms and new rules for hospital pricing and collection practices.

WORKSHOP ON CONSTITUTIONAL LAW

Discussion Group: Sex and Gender Classifications: What Level of Scrutiny?

The Supreme Court has not revisited the question of what level of scrutiny should apply to sex and gender classifications in nearly two decades. This discussion group will explore whether the Court should revisit this question and, were it to do so, what level of scrutiny should apply, as well as: possible rationales for applying a heightened level of scrutiny to any of the subcategories within the two broader categories of sex and gender; the ramifications of applying a higher level of scrutiny, for those affected directly as well as for other potential suspect classifications; and whether any justifiable differences in treatment might be handled effectively by allowing for a broader range of compelling purposes rather than applying intermediate scrutiny.

WORKSHOP ON THE LEGAL PROFESSION

Discussion Group: Crossing the Bar: Current Character and Fitness Issues in Admission to the Profession

State Bar admissions character and fitness committees are looking more carefully at applicants and have heightened expectations about the role of law schools in screening and disciplining applicants. Among other things, bar admission authorities are looking at student debt and credit worthiness, adding pro bono requirements for new lawyers, refining mental health inquiries, and considering criteria for readmission after disbarment. In addition, cases pending in Florida and California will decide whether undocumented immigrants may be admitted to practice law in those states. This discussion group will consider factors that should be relevant to character and fitness inquiries and the appropriate role of law schools in this process.

Discussion Group: Emerging Remedies

Remedies law exists at the crossroads of substantive rights. Innovative remedies emerge to bridge gaps in the law and cure creative wrongs. Examples abound with the development of intellectual property remedies, advancements in the Restatement (Third) of Restitution, and expansions of remedies for violations of groundbreaking interpretations of rights in areas such as privacy and national security. This discussion group will engage in a robust dialogue about emerging remedies, evolution of remedies doctrine, and provocative new trends in remedies cases, theory, and scholarship. Our discussion will also contrast eroding remedies and doctrine and assess whether revival is warranted.

WORKSHOP ON INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY

Discussion Group: Economic, Ethical, and Neo-Tech Theories of Intellectual Property

Intellectual property law has conventionally found justification in a concessionary theory of pure positive law. IP law is said to rest on a utilitarian perspective that evaluates rules and policies according to their social and economic impact. This is conventionally said to comprise the minimum legal protection necessary to incentivize (i) creation, (ii) disclosure, or (iii) commercial exploitation. This panel will discuss: how other theories, including ethical natural-rights-based property interests, dignity-based property interests, neo-tech functionality interests, and right-to-free-competition interests, may (or should) influence how we think about and evaluate intellectual property policies; and whether these theories can be used as a reliable ex ante guide to cohesive law-making and policy decisions.

Discussion Group: Administrative Law Issues in Teaching Climate Change

The new U.S. climate change policy raises many administrative law issues. Agencies such as the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and the Corps of Engineers must include climate change in their project reviews and the Environmental Impact Statement process. The National Flood Insurance Program and flood maps are now a land use flashpoint with their new requirement of actuarially sound rates. Hurricane Sandy showed that sea level rise is not just an issue for the Gulf Coast. These provide topics for climate change courses that are directly related to domestic administrative and environmental law practice and client counseling. The group will discuss how to use these topics and share examples of course materials. The objective is to link climate change teaching more closely to administrative and environmental law practice.

WORKSHOP ON INTERNATIONAL LAW

Discussion Group: Professional Responsibility and the Global Fight against Corrupt Practices and Bribery

Great strides have been made to combat corrupt practices and bribery worldwide, but serious problems remain—and the challenges are not limited to the developing world. Some countries have adopted or strengthened their professional responsibility rules in order to improve the legal profession and promote the rule of law, but more can be done.

This discussion group will focus on the intersection of anticorruption/antibribery efforts and professional responsibility rules. It will consider strengths and weaknesses and possible areas for improvement and will discuss whether (and to what extent) U.S. lawyers have a professional duty to improve the rule of law and legal ethics in other countries—especially in international crisis "hot spots" or countries with less developed professional responsibility rules.

Floyd v. City of New York: The Future of Stop and Frisk

This panel will discuss the recent 195-page opinion in Floyd v. City of New York, where the federal district judge held unconstitutional the City of New York's policies for stops and frisks, both on Fourth Amendment grounds and on Equal Protection grounds. The opinion relied heavily on a statistical review of 4.4 million stops between 2004 and 2012. Many issues arise from this opinion that the panelists will discuss, including the correctness of the decision, the appropriateness of the use of statistics, the meaning of the finding for all stop and frisks, and the potential solutions to an intractable issue of police discretion.

The Tax System and Democracy

This panel examines the interaction of the tax system and the democratic process. Both tax and election law influence how citizens participate in democratic elections. Is this a proper role for the tax system? Should tax-exempt groups be limited in their ability to participate in politics? Through the charitable deduction and tax-exemption, tax law allows individuals with minority interests to direct federal funds to their projects without winning a democratic majority. Is this anti-democratic? Which groups should be allowed to do this? Lastly, should the same rules apply to making tax law as to other laws, or should taxes have their own regulatory and interpretive procedures? This panel examines these and related questions.

WORKSHOP ON INTERNATIONAL LAW

International Hotspots and Crises: The Rule of Law and the Role of Lawyers

A central feature of the post-Cold War global landscape is the emergence of international "hot spots"—localized crises of international importance. From Afghanistan to the Sudan to Rwanda, from North Korea to western African states, these crises and local conflicts garner a wide variety of responses: trade sanctions; condemnation by the UN General Assembly; the giving or withholding of humanitarian aid—or sadly, sometimes no response at all.

This panel will discuss hot spots and consider them from several perspectives, with particular emphasis on (a) humanitarian concerns and (b) the role that lawyers do or should play in addressing the challenges hot spots present for global stability and the effectiveness of international law.

A New Twist on Remedies: Judicial Assignment of Bad Faith Claims

Bad faith claims are divided into first-party claims and third-party claims. Courts distinguish between these two because the type of claim will determine the remedies available. First-party claimants are distinguished by the special protections offered to them through privity of contract with the insurer. Third-party claimants generally have no direct recourse against an insurer, but may gain limited rights through an assignment with an insured. But what remedy when the insured is unavailable or unwilling to assign his rights to the third party? Courts are fashioning a remedy by defining the right of action held by a judgment debtor/third-party as property that can be judicially assigned in a proceeding supplementary to the execution of a judgment.

WORKSHOP ON LABOR AND EMPLOYMENT LAW

Discussion Group: Title VII at 50: What Needs to Change?

2014 marks the 50th anniversary of Title VII, which prohibits discrimination in employment based on various protected statuses. Many scholars who focus on claims under Title VII have become increasingly frustrated with how the law is working in the court system. This roundtable will focus on what needs to change about Title VII to make it more effective for those it was designed to protect. Participants will submit a short paper prior to the conference that suggests one change they would make to Title VII, how it would improve the efficacy of the law, and why it would be the best one for Congress to adopt. Participants will engage in a roundtable discussion about the proposals.

Discussion Group: Distance Learning in Legal Education - Where Do We Go from Here?

Legal education has been slower to adopt distance learning than many other fields, in part because the American Bar Association (ABA) has restrictive rules for online J.D. courses, but also because law schools, working from the principle that "law is different," have been reluctant to accept the possibility that distance learning can provide quality legal education. Law schools are under scrutiny, with critics demanding changes to legal education programs and students, accustomed to online course components, asking why law schools lag behind. This discussion group will identify strategies inherent in distance education that can be used to address these concerns.

Discussion Group: Faculty Development Deans: Defining our Role. Tips for Each Other and Others

This discussion group will consist of professors and deans who play a role in overseeing the scholarship and teaching development of their colleagues. It is a continuation of the inaugural session last year where the group discussed "what works." It was a very productive session attended by about 30 people--mostly deans. This year, we want to open up the discussion to be of benefit to "consumers" of research deans' efforts. We especially encourage "newer law professors" to come and learn about how a research dean can be helpful in supporting their scholarly agenda, efforts at obtaining external research funding, and growth as a teacher.

Discussion Group: Deans Discuss the Pressure Cooker

Invitees, most of whom participated in 'Grasping the Nettle' in 2013, will engage in moderated discussion of the environment in 2014 and what the future may hold. Deans are in an unenviable position of accountability to many, often conflicting, constituencies during a prolonged period of crisis in legal education. The expectations of those constituencies and the attacks on the value of what we do and who we are create the pressure cooker. A group of invited deans will have a rare opportunity to meet and engage frankly in an environment without an audience.

Discussion Group: Procedural Hurdles and the Day in Court

The judicial process has transformed over the last decades, which has impacted the ability of plaintiffs to obtain a day in court. Federal statutory and rule revisions, as well as recent Supreme Court decisions, have made marked changes in the enforcement of arbitration clauses, federal subject matter jurisdiction, personal jurisdiction, venue, pleading standards, class certification standards, and the discovery process. These changes have combined to place greater emphasis on the pretrial process at the expense of the availability of a trial. This discussion group will explore these changes, at both an individual and collective level, and the resulting changes to the American system of procedure. Discussants will exchange papers before the conference examining these issues from a variety of perspectives.

Discussion Group: Is it Time for a Uniform Bullying Statute?

A professional football player's recently publicized allegations highlighted media attention on bullying, a harm with growing public recognition. There are reports of an increase in bullying acts against individuals and groups in a variety of settings, including workplaces, universities and colleges, and primary and secondary schools. Acts of bullying have ranged from face-to-face bullying to social media/cyberbullying. The traumatic impact of bullying on victims has gone as far as suicide.

The Discussion Group will identify the settings in which bullying occurs, common victims and their bullies, and the victims' reactions during and after the bullying act(s). Thereafter, the Group will engage in a collective remedies conversation and also explore whether the legal community should recommend "intervention" approaches.

WORKSHOP ON RACE Contemporary Issues in Law, Race, and Education

More than fifty years after Brown v. Board of Education, great racial inequalities still exist in our public education system. This panel will discuss how education laws and policies could be changed to better support more positive educational outcomes in populations that are underserved by our public education system. Panelists will consider topics such as how affirmative action programs fail to benefit students who need them the most; how current school discipline policies and practices encourage the growth of the school to prison pipeline that disparately impacts students of color; and how the United States could learn from the EU regarding school desegregation liability and remedies.

ALJ Finality and the Development of Administrative Courts: A Doctrinal and Empirical Reassessment

Since the 1990s, several states have vested their ALJs with the authority to issue final orders in agency adjudications and have created a review procedure using independent ALJs, effectively creating an administrative court. The motivation for enhanced independence in administrative adjudication is to increase the efficiency, independence and accuracy of decisionmaking. But early evaluations of these systems expressed concern because of the potential for ALJ finality to thwart agency accountability and undermine agency efforts to develop consistent policy through adjudication.

It is time to reassess. This panel will revisit and re-evaluate four different adjudicative systems that use ALJ finality or an administrative court, combining doctrinal and empirical analyses of the independence, efficiency, and accuracy of these systems.

WORKSHOP ON TAXATION

Business Taxes in a Time of Uncertainty

Tax planning today takes place against a backdrop of weak tax institutions, uncertain economic prospects, globalization, and change. Our panel examines how innovation, change and uncertainty affect a range of tax issues. Topics include possible reforms to the international tax system, how tax innovations interact with corporate governance, how small business lobbies for its issues, and how the tax code addresses with valuation uncertainty.

Originalism and Constitutional Structure in the Post-Snowden National Surveillance State

This panel discussion will provide an overview of the cybersurveillance debate, including a summary of the post-Snowden NSA surveillance disclosures and post-Snowden litigation. Next, panelists will discuss the role of originalism, and First Amendment and Fourth Amendment first principles, in understanding the constitutional challenges in the post-Snowden litigation. The role of structural protections in examining the constitutionality of these recently-disclosed cybersurveillance programs will also be considered. Panelists will further address whether and how Congress and the Court may ultimately abdicate oversight through legislative deference and national security deference. Finally, the panel will explore whether legislative, administrative, and technological solutions may be more appropriate in guaranteeing constitutional freedoms in the Post-Snowden National Surveillance State.

WORKSHOP ON CRIMINAL LAW AND PROCEDURE Cross-Jurisdictional Application of Criminal Law Norms

The panel will examine the cross-jurisdictional application of domestic and international criminal law norms. Panelists will discuss how the scope of federal constitutional rights often differs as a result of state and lower federal court concurrent authority to interpret the Constitution. Panelists will also compare U.S. and EU approaches to choice of law questions when crime and law enforcement cross state borders. They will then examine how universal jurisdiction for international crimes has been undermined by varied judicial interpretations of an individual's ability to claim immunity from prosecution. Finally, panelists will discuss how federalism has influenced American criminal justice. They will consider, among other topics, how our theory of federalism has encouraged a "fragmented system" of governance over crime labs.

WORKSHOP ON TAXATION Improving Clarity and Administrability in New Areas of Taxation

This panel seeks to explore the newly developing boundaries of taxation in our dynamic society. The panel will consider both domestic and international tax issues with a focus on proposals to improve clarity and administrability of tax laws in developing areas of tax law such as cloud computing, new families, transfer pricing, and constitutional limitations on state taxation. The panel will consist of four presentations of research and will then finish with a full panel discussion on the balance between effectuating the purpose of a tax law and providing for clarity and administrability.

WORKSHOP ON LABOR AND EMPLOYMENT LAW

Perspectives on Tenure at Law Schools from Professors Who Teach Employment-Related Classes

The American Bar Association's Council on Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar has tentatively approved two recommended changes to ABA Standard 405, which would abolish the requirement that ABA-accredited schools maintain a system of tenure. In response, more than 500 professors at ABA-accredited law schools signed a letter asserting that the elimination of the tenure requirement from the accreditation process would threaten academic freedom, stifle dissenting points of view and retard efforts to recruit and retain minority law professors. This panel of employment law professors will add a unique perspective to the debate about law school professor tenure.

Judicial Deception

Some lawyers and scholars believe Judges mischaracterize facts and law leading to confusion about the meaning of decisions as well as questions about the integrity of the judicial system. Yet the rhetoric of the profession may accept fictions that mask problems and uncertainty caused by misstatements in judicial opinions. These fictions may also perpetuate the judiciary's apolitical image.

To what extent should scholars call attention to instances of judicial misinformation? To what extent should judges object to misleading statements in other judges' opinions? To what extent do compromises in appellate courts justify misstatements of prior doctrine? This panel will ask whether misleading statements in judicial opinions are a serious problem and, if so, what should be done about it.

Discussion Group: New Voices in Labor and Employment Law

The purpose of this works-in-progress program is to give junior scholars in labor and employment law feedback on papers from senior scholars in labor and employment law before the upcoming submission cycle. We will discuss submissions from scholars with five or fewer years of full-time labor and employment teaching experience (not counting the 2013-14 academic year). A Call for Papers describing the program in detail was generated separately. Proposals were received from and accepted to include the following junior scholars whose papers will be discussed: Brian Clarke, The Impact of Judicial Nominations on Court Ideology: Assessing the Moderation of the Fourth Circuit Through Its Labor & Employment Law Decisions From 2004 to 2012; Llezlie Green Coleman, Problematizing the Private Attorney General: Immigrant Women and Workplace Exploitation; and Cynthia Tompkins, Celebrating Title VII's 50th Anniversary: Examining the Landmark Law's History and Impact on Race Relations in the Workplace and Society.

This workshop provides the opportunity for 2014 New Scholars writing in the area of private law to receive close feedback on brief (maximum 10-page), early-stage work from each other and from more senior scholars in the field. Participants in the workshop will be three New Scholars whose early-stage works in progress in the private law arena have been selected by the New Scholars Committee, and three more senior private law scholars. Each New Scholar/paper will be assigned a reader, who will present the early work and open discussion on it; all participants will have read all four papers, and will provide feedback. The aim of the workshop will be to provide broad feedback on early-stage works, as well as the experience of collaboratively workshoping scholarship.

WORKSHOP ON BUSINESS LAW Discussion Group: Corporate Compliance After the Crisis

The financial crisis ushered in an era of increased regulation and renewed enforcement efforts for public companies. It also focused attention on corporate compliance programs based in part on the perception that a robust and effective corporate compliance program may have enabled many corporations to avoid recent disasters by ensuring more appropriate oversight of the corporation and its officers and agents. This discussion group will focus on an array of topics related to corporate compliance programs, including compliance developments under Dodd-Frank, the extent to which compliance programs do and should impact corporate liability, the role of such programs in deferred prosecution agreements, and the role of directors and officers in ensuring effective compliance.

Discussion Group: Strategies for Balancing Our Love for Work and Our Love for Life Beyond the Academy

As professors we are very fortunate in that most of us love our work. Indeed, there is always more that we want to do and could do for our work. Yet, we also have people, goals and interests outside of work that we love and that remain important priorities for us whether they are aging parents, spouses, significant others, children, sports or hobbies. At a time of decreasing enrollments and tight budgets, supporting work-life balance for professors can become a low priority. Yet, if this remains an important goal for professors, we must find ways to balance our competing priorities. This panel will discuss strategies and ideas that panelists have developed to balance these competing demands on our time.

Panelists will explore the Court's decision this term in Sebelius v. Hobby Lobby and Conestoga Wood Specialties Corp v. Sebelius, challenging the contraceptive mandate of the Affordable Care Act. Over 100 cases have now been brought to challenge the mandate. Implications for those cases, other parts of the Affordable Care Act, health care reform efforts generally, and potential other effects will be discussed.

WORKSHOP ON CRIMINAL LAW & PROCEDURE

Discussion Group: Mass Incarceration: The Criminal Justice That Got Us Here

This group will discuss criminal justice issues related to the variety of practices by law enforcement officials, prosecutors, corrections officials, legislatures, and others, that led to the present day phenomenon of mass incarceration, which is the subject of Professor Michelle Alexander's award-winning book, The New Jim Crow: Mass Incarceration in the Age of Color-Blindness (2010). Our topics include criminal law and constitutional criminal procedure issues related to racial profiling, stop-and-frisk policing, the War on Drugs, prosecutorial discretion, coerced pleas, wrongful convictions, the school-to-prison pipeline, sentencing guidelines, mandatory minimum sentences and habitual offender laws, offender supervision, and prison expansion.

WORKSHOP ON BUSINESS LAW

Discussion Group: Imagining a New Paradigm for Insider Trading Law

Without any clear statutory definition, the sometimes-competing influences of the courts and the SEC in shaping the law of insider trading over the last half-century has yielded an enforcement regime that is often criticized as vague, inconsistent, and even incoherent. Is the current insider trading enforcement regime in need of a new paradigm? If so, who should articulate it—Congress, the SEC, or the courts? What new models should be considered? How would any proposed change affect the scope of insider trading liability, the available penalties, and public attitudes? This discussion group will explore these and related questions.

NEW LAW TEACHERS WORKSHOP

Balancing the Demands of Service, Teaching and Scholarship Within Your Law School's Culture

Dividing the three major responsibilities of a law professor, teaching, scholarship and service, often calls for a difficult and delicate balance. Service, especially, can get lost in the thicket. Throw in the relevance of collegiality, and navigating the culture of a law school can become a challenging task. The panelists will discuss how to succeed in service and collegiality without getting overextended; how to devote time to individual students without draining time; and how to become involved in community service, among other things.

WORKSHOP ON CONSTITUTIONAL LAW

Terms of Service as Speech Rules

Website, Internet access, and application providers' content policies set boundaries for online expression and privacy. Governments pressure these companies to delete offensive or harmful content, but a company employee, not a judge, decides whether to remove that content. The boilerplate nature of intermediaries' terms of use makes it impossible for users to know in advance whether their content might violate those terms. The unilateral ability of intermediaries to revise these contracts also challenges preexisting norms of ownership over user-generated content. And as governments partner with private companies to provide citizens with high-speed Internet access in public spaces, the management of content traveling over those networks raises novel constitutional questions. This panel will explore these developments' ramifications for online speech and privacy.

New Issues in Transitional Justice

Societies emerging from conflict marked by widespread human rights abuses face many challenges and opportunities in redressing these violations. Transitional justice mechanisms like criminal prosecutions, truth commissions, reparations, and institutional reforms can help countries like Libya or Colombia grapple with the past while looking toward the future. This panel will address current issues in transitional justice, including the effect international criminal prosecutions have on affected societies, the importance of transitional constitutions and constitutional reform, the role of women and women's rights during and after conflict, and the evolution of transitional justice mechanisms during the past several decades. The panel sits at the crossroads of international law, human rights, criminal law, constitutional law, international criminal law, and institution building.

NEW SCHOLARS WORKSHOP Works-in-Progress—Public Law

This workshop provides the opportunity for 2014 New Scholars writing in the area of public law to receive close feedback on brief (maximum 10-page), early-stage work from each other and from more senior scholars in the field. Participants in the workshop will be three New Scholars whose early-stage works in progress in the public law arena have been selected by the New Scholars Committee, and three more senior public law scholars. Each New Scholar/paper will be assigned a reader, who will present the early work and open discussion on it; all participants will have read all four papers, and will provide feedback. The aim of the workshop will be to provide broad feedback on early-stage works, as well as the experience of collaboratively workshoping scholarship.

NEW LAW TEACHERS WORKSHOP

Discussion Group: What Deans Would Tell Newer Law Teachers—If They Asked

Many newer law teachers go about their teaching, scholarship and service with little or no contact with administrators. What if the collected wisdom of these administrators was at the newer law teachers' disposal for mentoring and advice? This workshop explores what experienced administrators would tell newer law teachers, especially advancing some "do's and don'ts."

WORKSHOP ON NATIONAL SECURITY LAW

Discussion Group: PATRIOT Games & Whistleblowers? NSA Cybersurveillance, WikiLeaks, & the National Security State

The depth and breadth of the classified documents leaked by former National Security Agency (NSA) contractor Edward Snowden and former Pfc. Bradley Manning has been historically unprecedented. This panel discussion will explore the constitutional and legal implications of both NSA cybersurveillance as well as the implications of national security whistleblowing. Specifically, the panelists will address WikiLeaks, First Amendment rights of national security whistleblowers, and the architecture of cybersurveillance tools at the disposal of the NSA in the midst of a big data revolution. Other topics will include whether big data cybersurveillance tools can yield as-of-yet unexplored benefits and how the government has justified the necessity for mass cybersurveillance in a post-9/11 world.

WORKSHOP ON FAMILY LAW

Discussion Group: Cutting-Edge Issues in Family Law

Because family law is so dynamic, cutting-edge issues are not hard to find. Presentations will focus on current adoption practices, open adoption, international adoption and adoption disruption. Several participants will be discussing other areas related to children such as greater recognition of the rights of de facto parents or step parents and how child development research affects the representation of children. Recent advances in assisted reproduction technology which continue to challenge traditional notions of legal parenthood will be discussed. With the advancing age of our population, adult children's responsibilities are also a topic of interest. Finally, the use of mediation in cases involving domestic violence continues to generate much conversation.

WORKSHOP ON BUSINESS LAW

Discussion Group: Perspectives on Teaching Corporate Social Responsibility

A significant number of law schools offer a corporate governance course, and a growing component of this course offering is corporate social responsibility (CSR). In many instances the entire course or seminar is dedicated to the topic of CSR. However, there are significant differences in how these courses are taught. These differences are manifested in the varied substantive areas covered as well as pedagogy. This discussion group will focus on how leading scholars currently incorporate CSR content, broadly defined, into the more traditional corporate governance curriculum. The discussion will also explore the importance of academic freedom in this area. Participants will be encouraged to share syllabi, reading lists, seminar paper topics, and teaching methods.

Did you ever hear a colleague say "I will not teach to the bar," regarding a core substantive law course? This discussion group focuses on the ways one can teach substantive law courses while simultaneously preparing students for the bar examination. This group is designed to discuss and provide concrete methods that can be employed to span perceived boundaries between substantive law and academic support courses. Group members may explore teaching methodologies, means of assessment, use of technology, incorporation of a variety of bar directed materials, and other related topics.

WORKSHOP ON CONSTITUTIONAL LAW

Discussion Group: The Evolution of Campaign Finance Reform: From Buckley to Citizens United to McCutcheon v. FEC

On the surface, McCutcheon v. FEC concerned the limit of aggregate campaign contributions and what a donor could give during a two-year election cycle. But the case was also about much more than that. The case revisited the campaign contribution limiting regime that the Supreme Court has wrestled with ever since 1976. While some Americans identify with the desire to spend as they wish, there are also negative effects of granting anyone — including corporations — the unfettered ability to donate funds to political campaigns. Did McCutcheon constitute a shift from the campaign finance regime that was crafted in the 1970s? In which direction is the campaign finance regime in this country now moving? In which direction should it move?

OMG!: The Problems and Possibilities of Using Law and Technology in the Classroom

A panel of new and experienced teachers will explore: (1) how to effectively use education technology to enhance classroom teaching and enrich the educational environment; (2) the impact of social media on legal education generally and on student/faculty relationships specifically; and (3) how to teach about technology by examining the ways in which topics, such as e-discovery and proper email drafting, enrich doctrinal, legal writing, and skills courses.

Law School Entrepreneurship

In the past few years, law schools have faced significant declines in applications and enrollment and increasingly difficult decisions about reducing program costs without affecting student quality. Most schools have undertaken significant "re-sizing" and budget retrenchment initiatives as they reduce enrollment while at the same time increasing scholarship awards. Many schools are attempting to increase revenues by becoming more entrepreneurial. This panel will discuss many of the entrepreneurial initiatives undertaken by schools, including developing undergraduate and "3+3" programs, launching non-JD degree programs, developing auxiliary business programs and activities, and, of course, adding post-graduate programs such as LLM degrees. Panelists will discuss how school leaders are adopting more innovative outlooks for their law schools, the issue of long-term sustainability of these initiatives, and some of the difficulties law schools are facing with their universities and external constituencies as they implement these new initiatives.

When Corporate Law and Election Law Collide: Century of Regulating Corporate Money in Politics.

The regulation of corporate money in politics is over 100 years old. Recently, the Supreme Court has taken a deregulatory approach. Most notably, in Wisconsin Right to Life II, the Court allowed corporate money into federal elections to buy electioneering communications. In 2010, the Court went even further in Citizens United and allowed corporations to pay for independent expenditures for the first time in 60 years. This panel will look at the impact of these new cases from the point of view of corporate law and election law professors. The panel will also explore the constitutional policy changes available to law makers who wish to bring more transparency to corporate political spending.

The Future of Legal Education: Innovative Alternatives to Traditional Tenure

The American Bar Association has tentatively embraced two plans that would eliminate tenure as an accreditation requirement. How will your institution respond? This panel will discuss tenure, alternatives to tenure, whether tenure should apply to all members of the faculty, and whether the definition of scholarship should be expanded. Panelists will discuss alternatives to tenure that their institutions have implemented to ensure faculty security of position and discuss how they arrived at the alternatives. One example is the Track approach. Each faculty member chooses one of three tracks—teaching, tenure or alternative. The teaching package of each faculty member (whether doctrinal, legal writing, skills, or clinic) is based on his or her chosen track.

Private Fund Regulation after the Dodd-Frank Act

For the last three decades, the SEC has repeatedly yet unsuccessfully attempted to increase the regulatory oversight of hedge fund managers. Resolving the tension between the industry and regulators regarding the appropriate level of regulatory oversight, the Dodd-Frank Act mandates hedge fund adviser registration as well as increased record-keeping and disclosure. Academics and policymakers, in turn, are analyzing and debating the role of hedge funds in our capital markets and the appropriate level of any additional regulations. For example, the implementation of new disclosure rules for systemic risk reporting to FSOC is a major focus of SEC implementation of Dodd-Frank Act requirements. More recently, the SEC, in a very controversial move, lifted the ban on general solicitation for private funds.

Tenure, Now What?

Congratulations, you've got tenure. Now what? Tenure looms large at the beginning of an academic career, defining just about everything we do professionally. Yet there is very little out there about the middle stage of one's career. The purpose of this panel is to facilitate a discussion about professional life after tenure. What does tenure mean for us as teachers, scholars, and colleagues, and how does it change the enterprise of being a law professor? Colleagues at all stages of their career are welcome and encouraged to be part of the discussion.

WORKSHOP ON FAMILY LAW

Discussion Group: Emerging Issues in Reproductive Rights

Reproductive technologies continue to develop at a breakneck pace. Advancements in the treatment of infertility have created a web of questions related to the ethics of these emerging technologies, access, and a balancing of legal interests amongst all those involved. Who are the parties involved and what are the nature of their interests in such technology? Who decides how much access and what treatments are available, and who decides when reproductive rights begin and end? How do concepts of property, torts, contracts, and health law intersect with reproductive rights, and how do we convey those issues in the classroom? Discussants will present their research on these emerging reproductive rights issues.

Discussion Group: Does the Public/Private Divide in Federal Securities Regulation Make Sense?

With the passage of the JOBS Act, a question that was lurking at the periphery of federal securities regulation in the United States has come to the forefront. That question? Why are securities offerings that are sufficiently "public" regulated so differently from those that may only be slightly more "private?" The JOBS Act highlights this issue by making it easier for private companies to raise capital publicly (Title II) and by making it easier for companies to remain private (Titles V and VI). The goal of this discussion group is to explore various aspects of these developments.

Discussion Group: Mandatory Arbitration and Justice

Mandatory binding arbitration has come under increasing scrutiny in Congress, the Supreme Court, and public discourse. Critics argue that the process is unfair because it is not truly consensual or because it lacks important procedural safeguards. By contrast, defenders claim that baseline norms of fairness are presupposed in the idea of arbitration and that outcomes for consumers and employees are at least as good as those in litigation.

Is justice possible in mandatory arbitration? How important is it in relation to other values such as autonomy and efficiency? How should we measure "justice"? We will discuss both historical and contemporary focuses, as well as individual and group perspectives.

WORKSHOP ON TAXATION

Discussion Group: Tax Policy

This discussion group is broadly concerned with issues of taxation. Discussants will address individual income tax, corporate income tax, state & local tax, estate & gift tax, tax expenditure policy, international tax and entitlements. While these disparate themes might seem only loosely related, a common thread of the difficulties of balancing equity, simplicity, incentives and transparency runs through all of them. These scholars will grapple with the central tax topics of the day and address the looming concerns that must be dealt with by all levels of government.

Discussants: Professor Neil Buchanan, The George Washington University Law School; Professor Kristin Gutting, Charleston School of Law; Professor Philip Hackney, Louisiana State University Paul M. Hebert Law Center; Professor Leandra Lederman, Indiana University, Maurer School of Law; Professor Omri Marian, University of Florida, Fredric G. Learning Theory in Legal Education

The Learning Theory in Legal Education panel is a hands-on workshop where you will learn practical applications to improve teaching based on key learning theories that directly address common learning challenges in today's legal education environment. Workshop facilitators will equip you to develop strategies grounded in sound learning theory for any situation and show you how to assess the results of your efforts to optimize educational outcomes. In this workshop, you will learn how to develop your own unique classroom exercises employing key learning theory concepts, such as: multimedia learning, experiential learning, metacognition, formative assessment, and more. This workshop is part of larger research efforts being conducted by a consortium of individuals with interest and expertise in the science of legal learning. A further description of the workshop, biographies of the presenters, as well as information about our ongoing research can be found at: <http://legalcognition.org>.

Discussion Group: Teaching Cross-Cultural Lawyering

Cultural competency is critical for students who will practice in a range of substantive areas and encounter clients who differ from them in race, nationality, gender, age, education level, religion, and economic status. Teaching cross-cultural lawyering skills can be particularly fraught with challenges, and the lessons imparted often hinge on the cultural, racial, and gender identity descriptors of the teachers and students. Our discussion group will focus on strategies for teaching cross-cultural lawyering skills in a variety of clinical and non-clinical contexts. Discussants will share exercises, materials, and perspectives related to teaching effective cross-cultural skills, focusing in particular on applying lessons to a range of practice settings and enhancing student reception to these concepts.

Discussion Group: Transparency in the Open Government Era

In recent decades, governments have tried to become more open and transparent. Governments have adopted open records laws and open meetings laws all designed to promote openness and transparency. However, the revelations by Edward Snowden of a secret governmental surveillance program raises questions about how much transparency can or should exist in modern societies. Participants in this discussion group will examine governmental openness and transparency from a number of perspectives.

Discussion Group: Teaching Methods to Help Students Develop a Professional Identity

Law faculty members have begun to focus on the development of professional identity in law students. Leaders in this effort will shed light on the myth that incorporating professional identity into the everyday legal course is a difficult task. Panelists will propose specific methods that can be employed by any professor (regardless of the level of experience) in either doctrinal or clinical courses. Panelists will also explain why the need for this inclusion is important for today's students. Participants will also receive written examples of effective, but easy, exercises to explore.

WORKSHOP ON BUSINESS LAW

Discussion Group: What is the Role of Trust in the Marketplace?

This discussion group explores the value and purpose, if any, of trust in business transactions. Formal participants in the discussion group will share a short discussion paper (approximately 2-3 pages) addressing this topic and may explore one or more of the following questions: What types of transactions depend upon trust between parties? What is the role of trust in risk management? Do contracting choices impact the interpersonal trust between parties? How can the law preserve interpersonal trust and facilitate its renewal if damaged?

Moderator: Professor Kish Vinayagamoorthy, Washington and Lee University School of Law

Discussants: Dr. Sarah Brown, University of Leeds School of Law (U.K.); Professor Timothy Canova, Nova Southeastern University, Shepard Broad Law Center; Professor André Douglas Pond Cummings, Indiana Tech Law School; Professor Lisa Fairfax, The George Washington University Law School; Professor Michelle Harner, University of Maryland, Francis King Carey School of Law; Professor Joan Heminway, The University of Tennessee College of Law; Professor Matthew Jennejohn, Brigham Young University, J. Discussion Group: Lawyers for Children: Ethical Dilemmas and Challenges

Attorneys advocate for children in a variety of legal proceedings: delinquency, dependency, special education, custody, contract disputes, healthcare, and consumer protection. The lawyer's ethical obligations to the child vary according to the nature of the proceeding, the nature of the attorney's appointment, and the cognitive and psychosocial capacities of the child client. To further complicate matters, the child's lawyer likely must navigate a host of potentially conflicting relationships with the child's parent or guardian, caseworker, teacher or counselor. This panel will explore the unique challenges lawyers encounter in representing children, including barriers to an effective attorney-client relationship and difficulties in determining whether and to what extent the attorney may engage third parties to enhance the child's decision-making capacity.
